Born in rural Arkansas in 1948 in a generation labeled the "baby boomers," his search for "why a generation turned out so alienated?" is a journey through the threat of nuclear destruction, Vietnam, the race to the moon, to rapid changes in the culture from dress to music to hair styles with its rejection of materialism, but most importantly a generation's rejection of the values and morality that so many of the parents of the depression and world war II failed to pass on.

A graduate of the Univ. of Arkansas with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1970 and Henderson University with a Master of Arts in 1972, his journey has been a profound search for the truth. Indeed, initially, it began with a sense of dread- a feeling that something was terribly wrong with what was being branded as progress (change) in America: From the beginning of the 1960's to the progress (change) being advocated in today's society in 2014, Brother Bob White became acutely aware that this country was rapidly entering a darkness from which it may not be able to return.

Married for over 30 years Bob and Cherri have two successful children that have done extremely well in spite of their parents.
